PUPIL WORKSHOPS

SRtRC offers engaging, educational workshops for pupils across Wales, designed to raise awareness of racism, promote equity, and empower young people to challenge prejudice and racism.

Our interactive workshops are delivered by experienced educators, with materials provided in both English and Welsh, making the sessions both inspiring and impactful. Each workshop is tailored to the needs and age of the group, using media clips, discussion, and activities to explore topics such as:

- What racism is, and how it affects individuals and communities
- How pupils can proactively be anti-racist
- The history and impact of racism in Wales and beyond
- Stereotyping, bias, and how to challenge misinformation
- How to be an active ally and stand up against discrimination

Workshops can be delivered in:

✓ Primary schools
✓ Secondary schools
✓ Pupil referral units
✓ Special Schools
✓ Colleges
✓ Youth settings

"At the start of the morning I didn't understand as much about racism, but by the end of the day by completing the workshop I learnt more about what racism is and how we can all make a difference and the affect racism has on communities."

LEADERS OF NOW

SRtRC offers longer-term pupil empowerment projects, ranging from a term at primary level to a whole school year at secondary level, giving pupils the tools to lead change in their own setting. We will work with select pupil anti-racism ambassadors to create an anti-racism group in school. The group will be supported to raise awareness of anti-racism, carry out research and plan actions accordingly. They will complete the project by sharing their work with the wider school community.

Project Aims:

- To build understanding of racism and anti-racism throughout the school
- To increase confidence in challenging racism
- To empower pupils to take the lead on anti-racism work

Project Outcomes:

- ✓ Pupils can recognise racism
- ✓ Pupils are confident to challenge racism
- ✓ Pupils take pro-active steps to stop racism arising within school
- ✓ Pupils feel they have a voice when it comes to challenging racism and feel empowered to act

'Seeing over time how you [the pupil ambassadors] have come up with ideas, so many creative ways of promoting awareness around the anti-racism message and the belief that you can make a difference. Those conversations you were having with pupils and staff and seeing the impact that was having and seeing how that then has encouraged you to build on your work and do even more I think has been great to see from the start of the project until now and it's exciting to see where you take it next'.
